Since it was founded in 1861, collecting has been one of the major strengths of the Rochester Historical Society. And, wait 'til you see what's been hidden away!

From photographs documenting our growth . . . paintings of Rochester's leaders and landscapes . . .

items and clothing reflecting our life and times . . . archives recording our progress, the Society has served as the stewards of the most comprehensive collection of Rochester's history outside of that owned by the City itself.

Our mission — collecting, preserving and interpreting the history of the Greater Rochester area for the education and enjoyment of the community — will come to life once again with the opening of our beautiful new space in Rundel.
